

hese quotes are famous enough to be recognized by most native English speakers. Some come from written English (plays, books, or poems), others come from movies, and still others come from famous figures in history. Any of these can be quoted in a conversation, in whole or in part, They are so famous that the longer quotes are more often referred to with only the first part of the quote because people know the rest. Once you know an English quote, you will see it referred to in many places. Famous quotes are often changed slightly to make jokes, since everyone will understand both the original quote and the changed version. They can also be used as jokes when you quote them in an unexpected context.

| Parting is such sweet sorrow                                                                                                                                              | William Shakespeare          | English  |
| Power corrupts; absolute power corrupts absolutely.                                                                                                                       | John Dalberg-Acton           | English  |
| Speak softly and carry a big stick                                                                                                                                        | Theodore Roosevelt           | English  |
| That’s one small step for a man, a giant leap for mankind.                                                                                                                | Neil Armstrong               | English  |
| The love of money is the root of all evil.                                                                                                                                | the Bible                    | Greek    |
| The only thing we have to fear is fear itself.                                                                                                                            | Franklin D. Roosevelt        | English  |
| The truth will set you free.                                                                                                                                              | the Bible                    | Greek    |
| There's no place like home.                                                                                                                                               | Dorothy (character)          | English  |
| Three can keep a secret, if two of them are dead.                                                                                                                         | Benjamin Franklin            | English  |
| Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.                                                                                                        | Alfred Lord Tennyson         | English  |
| To be or not to be, that is the question.                                                                                                                                 | William Shakespeare          | English  |
| To err is human; to forgive, divine.                                                                                                                                      | Alexander Pope               | English  |
| To thine own self, be true.                                                                                                                                               | William Shakespeare          | English  |
| Two roads diverged in a wood, and I, I took the one less travelled by, and that has made all the difference.                                                              | Robert Frost                 | English  |
| United we stand, divided we fall.                                                                                                                                         | Aesop                        | Greek    |
| What doesn't kill us makes us stronger.                                                                                                                                   | Friedrich Nietzsche          | German   |
| What we've got here is failure to communicate. Some men you just can't reach.                                                                                             | Captain (character)          | English  |
| Whatever you are, be a good one.                                                                                                                                          | Abraham Lincoln              | English  |
| You can fool all of the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time.                            | Abraham Lincoln              | English  |
| You must be the change you wish to see in the world.                                                                                                                      | Mahatma Gandhi               | English  |
